A Hymn for the Easter.

HEAVEN AND EARTH'S ANTIPRONAL. (Republished by request.) Hark the choral! "Christ is Risen!" Star to star the keynote tells;

Heaven and earth rings down the an them. Land to sea the music swells, Till the Universe strikes chorus,

One electric chime of Bells! Yonder skyarch paved with sapphire Looks the very Conqueror's road, Silvered with the dust triumphant, As He passed up "through the cloud,'

-Lifting into robes of glory Death's illuminated shroud.

Nature, too, holds her grand Easter-Breaking now from Winter's thrall. In these withered leaves and branches As she springs in life-robed beauty Like a resurrected soul.

Buds and birds and insect rapture Rise and answer Life's grand call. Down to the grave-sod's tinkling flower bell

In this Diapason fall. DEATH IS DEAD. AND LIFE IS RISEN -Heaven and Earth's antiphonal! O, ye dear Dead under grave-lock!

Lo! a light is in your room. See....fast-holding chains all broken. Death shrinks cowering in the gloom. Do you hear it? Keys are turning-Christ unlocks your marble home.

Allelujah-Allelujah-Soon your Easter day will come.

TARPLEY STARR.
